DESERTED WIFE IS FOUND DEAD

Mrs. Jane O'Neill Dies After Ouarrel with Her Husband.

The body of Jane O'Nell, frozen stiff, was found in the hallway of No. 2418 Second avenue, at daybreak to-day when the milkman was making his rounds. She died from want and ex-

Her husband John had quarrelled with her a week ago. The neighbors all say the blame was on his side. The guarrel culminated in the husband ordering the wife into the street. She went uncomplainingly, simply saying, "John, some day you will regret this." O'Neil broke up the home, disposed of their belongings and moved away. Penniless and with but the bare rags on her back, Mrs. O'Neil strove to earn a living. She did scrubbing and house-

Hours afterward little Tommy Kelly, son of Jane O'Neil's benefactor, Mrs. Kelly, entered the station-house. "Sergeant," began the little fellow, "mother says won't you please let Jane O'Neil out so she can get her breakfast at our house? Mother says Jane wouldn't do anything to be arrested. Mother would come herself, but she's got to mind the baby, and she says that you will be kind enough to let poor Jane come to us."

Husband's Explanation.

James O'Neill, the husband of the woman, was found to-day by Detective Teeven at the One Hundred and Sixteenth street station of the Department of Street Cleaning, where he earns $15 a week as blacksfith. O'Neill said his wife had been dissolute and her drinking habits grew for the past two years until he could stand it no longer, and on New Year's Day he decided to leave her. He admits that he disposed of the furniture.

her. He admits that he disposed of the furniture.

Mrs. Hugh Kelly, of No. 206 East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street, declares, however, that Mrs. O'Neill was a good woman, but that her husband gave her only 25 cents a week for expenses. She says that after disposing of the furniture he smashed the little oil stove and left her in the errpty rooms on the top floor of No. 2115 Second avenue. Her frozen body was found lying before the door on the top floor of No. 2113, as she evidently had mistaken this for her own house. Being unable to get in she was too weak to think and lay down to die. GIE. Blacksmith O'Neill took charge of his fe's body and said he would give it cent burial.

strong as she once was. Her kindhearted neighbor, Mrs. Kelly, gave her meals, but Mrs. O'Neil always insisted Did you ever try to stand for ten ninutes without moving a muscle? If you have done so, you probably know the ordeal is one requiring unusual mental power. La Petite Adelaide, the dancer, has been compelled to undergo it at every performance of "The Babes and the Baron." and has found the task so trying that she asked Albert Shubroot, a milkman, making Manager John C. Fisher to cut out that his rounds at 5 o'clock this morning.

and Dr. Tottle, of the New York Hos-pital, after making a careful examinapital, after making a careful examination, was unable to give a cause of death. "Perhaps heart disease; perhaps exposure." he said.

The woman was poorly but cleanly dressed. She looked to be thirty-five years old, of medium height, light complexioned and brown hair. Her clothes consisted of a red waist, dark skirt, black cape, white underwear and button shoes. The body was taken to the Morgue, where an autapsy will be held. There were no marks of violence on the body, and nothing on the person to make an identification.

slowing up a passenger elevator at the fifth floor of the Hotel Boniface, at Columbus avenue and One Hundred and Third street, this afternoon the section of car flooring upon which he stood gave way and with it he fell to the basement, nearly seventy feet. Notwithstand the long drop he may not die, although he is in the J. Hood Wright Hospital, badly injured.

The accident, so peculiar in itself seems impossible of explanation. J. J. Cryan, proprietor of the hotel, says the elevator was regularly inspected, and that no fault of construction or weekness had ever been noticed in the floor. It is a caple elevator, with electricity for a motive power.

Arested Father and Daughter.

Detective Behlan was standing on the corner of Myrtle and Marcy avenues last night when he heard a shot. He while used institution in time to see a man flying down the street. Another man stood near a girl, holding a revolver in his hand. Benlan arrested the two and took them to the station-house.

They were balled out by Water Register Maguire.

When arranged in court to-day Curtis was represented by Attorney William McGuire, who entered a plea of guilty for his client and asked that an adjournment be taken until to-morrow and a hearing held before and decision was made. This was granted and Curtis left the court in the custody of the lawyer. His daughter was greatly exercised over the charge of vagrancy which had been entered against her.

"This is an outrage," he cried, "you have no right to lock anyone up under these circumstances when they have a home and people to care for them." Interesting developments are expected at the hearing. section of car flooring upon which he
